Unit 3: Lab and Challenge

Write up:

I completed the task of cleaning up all my history, freezing transformations, centering pivots and I renamed all my objects. I liked using the freeze transformations because it helped me stay organized and not run into issues. For my new object, I made a simple coffee cup and a plate for the table. I like the mug because it fits the room scene well (especially with the bookshelf). I practiced using cylinders, more extruding, and combining objects. I also experimented with the torus and found that interesting, I used that shape for the handle of the mug. I feel a little more comfortable modeling, although it's still a learning curve and I want to spend more time practicing how to make objects look realistic.
